To have them published in the Methodist will be peculiarly agreeable to me.

My early association with you people, in the West, has left a warm feeling of affection, & I do not feel foreign to you, but a child at home, rather as I grow older. I more highly value the elements which draw & bind all that truly love Christ. To gather. And I esteem it a grateful compliment to my feelings, when Christians of denominations not my own, accept my services.

I am truly yours

Dear Sir

I have no objection to make it an arrangement wh you propose -

You can have a sermon fortnightly, or weekly, if you shall think it best -

My connection with the Independent terminates in January early -
- three months notice is being required of contract which notice I have given -

Other arrangements are suggested, for the publication time of my Sermons, but nothing is settled. But whatever may come of these consultations on the part of friends, it need make no difference with you
- as there will always be at least a Sermon a week, or some equivalent lecture - In regard to the Sermons, I feel delighted that the people are willing to read them, & a sort of wish that while this appetite lasts, it might be met as universally as possible - The same reason that would lead one to preach at all, should lead him to rejoice in an audience so large as yours - It is a peculiar pleasure to me to think that so many poor widows, spinsters, working men, sick people, scattered families without Churches, - are fed by me, unconsciously & without toil. & that the Sermons silently & invisibly multiply, as it were, my personal labors for Christ.
